

The Strings That Combine Us

Lyrics by Toki Wright & Music by Scott Agster

INTRO

Chords, strings, we bring. Melody. Rhythm is life, and life is rhythm.

HORNS ENTER

Heh heh heh, vibes, let em know, wooo, strings, that combine, a harmonious state.

VERSE

Find the strings that combine us, not divide us, coincide with the side that you ride with.

Whether David or Goliath, common man, woman or giant,
seller or the client.

My propeller is the fly-est, do or die-eat, touch the Midas, but maybe I was biased.

Keep it tighter than the vice-grip when you look at my script, legit, as we move these bricks. Uh!

One by one till they all build a wall, never fall if I'm holdin' onto ya'll, so let's show em' all.

They had better know the protocol in a world that's so bizarre, tryin' to get a piece and you to to war.

And if we never find a pathway past the passways,
then burn like and urn from the ashtray.

This is the fire that we yearn, as we take a turn from the past ways or we in the last days.

VIOLIN SOLO BREAKDOWN

Last days baby, wake up or break up, you dig? I think we got a new movement happening' right here, right now. The power of us, as one, come on, well alright.

OUTRO

You and you and you and you and me.

You and me, you and me. Play that thing, play that horn, and rock on till the break of dawn. Hah, ya know, a good thang. One for all, all for
